To Whom it May Concern;

I've had the Solar Companion for 6 Months now. I have put it through many test to see if the claims made are true. It has proved to be a real safety factor and people have made it a point to point out how they was able to see me where normally they would have missed me. It makes me feel much more secure when I have to cross streets as the people see me and stop for me to cross. Plus, I have taken on trip5 where I often go, to the mall, to church and home from the Quality Inn in Kennewick, To Wal-Mart in Richland and everyone is so courteous to me,

I've tested the Solar Companion on keeping my battery charged and even when it's cloudy there is some charging, I've left the mall with only one green light, with it hazy and partial cloudy and was able to arrive home with 2 yellow. In the past I've been down to the flashing red and it causes a lot of stress. I've talked to people whose batteries have gone dead and they were helpless. I really feel that the Solar Companion will SM me thtousJ1 so I am never worried,

The Solar Companion (though I'm in a wheel chair and can't walk) has made mv life so much more secure and safe and I'm able to be more active and don't have to sit at home afraid to go anywhere.

To whom it may concern;

Regarding: The Solar Companion

My name is Mary Jane Hogan, wife of Bill Hogan. Bill is a Disabled Vietnam Veteran who is a single amputee and bound to his wheel chair or power chair when not confined to his bed. Bill is dependent upon others and a long list of medical devices, and medications to get through each day. Within the past two years he has lost his hearing, eyesight, and mobility. He struggles with not having his independence to go places and be active in the community with family and friends.

One day as Bill was struggling with his independence and his ability to be independently mobile, The Solar Companion was introduced into his life by a perfect stranger/inventor. Bill used The Solar Companion and discovered a new way of coping with his restrictions and mobility issues. The Solar Companion enhances most power chairs to give an immobile person the security to adventure out beyond their personal home. Bill has experienced near fatal incidences by traveling from our home to the local shopping mall, which is only one mile away. With no light system or reflector devices on the standard power chair, crossing at a cross walk in an intersection is deadly. Any power chair is virtually impossible to see or notice by an oncoming vehicle. This is dangerously true in shady areas, bad weather conditions, dusk or dark hours.

With The Solar Companion, the special lighting system and reflectors are virtually impossible not to notice. The water proof cover gives protection from most weather conditions. Therefore, creates a safer and secure adventure for people like Bill. One of Bill's favorite features of The Solar Companion is the phone charger and other gadget like features that it has. With it being a solar charged item, it is environmentally smart.

Bill and I can not wait for The Solar Companion to become available on the public market. We are excited to share it with many other Disabled Veterans and anyone who struggles with the fears of being safely mobile in the community.

Thank you for the opportunity to share our opinion about The Solar Companion.

Respectfully,

Bill and Mary Jane Hogan
